2. Welcome and introduction

RS welcomed attendees and did Acknowledgement of Country and Acknowledgement of people with lived experience.

3. Working Group (WG) updates

a. WG1 (health interventions)

LLi reported WG1 met at the end of February, with discussion focusing on how to ensure that psychological therapies are accessible across the region and effective in reducing suicide. AH noted that he & Frank Deane (UOW) are currently undertaking research to unpack what the effective components of suicide prevention therapies are from the perspectives of clinicians and clients.

Last week, Fiona Shand (Black Dog Institute) and AH presented the recently published Guidelines for Integrated Suicide-related Crisis and Follow-up Care in Emergency Departments and other acute settings to relevant ISLHD staff. Working with ISLHD staff to determine best way to respond to the Guidelines.

RS reported that referrals to Next Steps Aftercare Service are increasing, and that the service has begun operation from the Shoalhaven Hospital ED this week. (Now available at Wollongong, Shellharbour and Shoalhaven Hospitals.)

LLi noted that 13 General Practices have now expressed interest in implementing the StepCare screening tool, with likely rollout to start in late March.

b. WG2 (community interventions)

AH reported that WG2 beginning to map out how community suicide prevention training (formerly referred to as ‘gatekeeper training’) currently operates. That is, how are sessions booked, RSVPs managed, venues arranged, and training sessions promoted? WG2 will then discuss how this process would ideally work and how we might work towards that.

SB stated that ISPAN has agreed to fund 10 of its members to complete QPR online training.

c. WG3 (school interventions)

HM reported that YAM has been rolled out to 8 public schools, 2 Catholic schools, and 1 independent school. WG3 now discussing how to promote YAM through the media to attract further involvement from independent schools and the general community. WG3 also discussing how to maintain fidelity of the program over time.

AH noted that Waminda has committed 3 staff to become YAM Helpers (and 2 of these to eventually become YAM Facilitators) to ensure that schools with a high proportion of Aboriginal students have an Aboriginal person leading the program.

RdJ requested clarification on how we will receive feedback regarding how schools and students are experiencing the YAM program.

ACTION 1: AH to follow up with the Black Dog Institute on what we will have access to locally from the evaluation/feedback on YAM, and the timeline for us receiving this.

AH

d. WG4 (data-driven suicide prevention)

AH reported that WG4 has been developing summaries of the suicide data received from the Black Dog Institute and the PHN. The first of these is for reinforcing key messages (see Section 4 of these minutes). Others summaries aimed at informing Working Groups will follow shortly, as well as dashboard data summaries gauging the impact of our activities over time in the longer term.

e. WG5 (Aboriginal suicide prevention)

GW reported that WG5 has agreed to prioritise locally-developed community campaigns featuring local Aboriginal people telling their experiences of recovery. Looking to have 2 Aboriginal people attend the Roses in the Ocean training for people with lived experience of suicidality to help prepare for the community campaigns.

ACTION 2: WL to follow up with Nathan Deaves about Aboriginal people who would be suitable to attend the Roses in the Ocean training on 19-20 March.

4. Suicide data infographic

AH introduced the first draft of a 1-page summary of key suicide data developed by WG4. This is a public-facing summary of the data that can be used to reinforce the key message that “suicide affects everyone, and so everyone has a role to play in suicide prevention” as there is no one unique profile of the typical person who suicides. Discussed the challenges associated with representing data on this topic – wanting it to be accurate, but succinct enough to be clearly understood. Various members had feedback on specific elements of the 1-page summary, but generally it was agreed to be worthwhile.

ACTION 3: AH to incorporate feedback from the members into next revision of the 1-page summary.

5. Funding allocation process

TH advised that some additional funding has been made available as part of the LifeSpan project. This is one-off funding and quarantined for specific strategies (and not all strategies) in relatively small amounts. As a result it’s best to consider it seed-funding and certainly not enough to run a new service. The executive members are proposing a process for allocating this funding, wanting a transparent process that’s not too arduous. Also wanting to enable new ideas to come forward, and so the proposed process provides an opportunity to re-engage with community members on what they believe is needed.

The proposed process begins with engaging with groups representative of the high risk cohorts over-represented in the suicide deaths data for this region – people with lived experience, men, and Aboriginal people. These groups will begin with identifying what is needed, which will then be fed through to the Working Groups. Working Groups will overlay this information with the evidence-base and their knowledge of the current services available.

Working Groups will develop proposals for how to best spend the additional funding, ensuring proposed activities are sustainable, evidence-based and meeting identified needs. Executive members will ensure all proposals complement each other across strategies and provide final sign-off.

All members unanimously agreed with this process (click here for an overview of the funding allocation process).

ACTION 4: AH & ER to begin coordinating high-risk community groups for consultation.

Puka Up

Puka Up is a new social enterprise founded by one of Australia's leading mental health advocates, Wayne Schwass (also a former North Melbourne and Sydney Swans player). In the Hindi language, Pukka means 'Authentic and Genuine'. Our vision for Puka Up is to create the environments for every person to have authentic and genuine conversations about mental health and emotional wellbeing.

On March 16th 2018, 30 cyclists will embark on a gruelling 8 day, 1433 Km bike ride from Sydney to Melbourne. The purpose of the ride is to honour the lives tragically lost to suicide, to help raise awareness about mental health and emotional wellbeing and to start a national suicide prevention conversation.

Puka Up is partnering with the Black Dog Institute to deliver community forums during the 8 day event. Engaging with local communities to provide a safe, supportive, non-judgemental environment for people to begin having authentic and genuine conversations about mental health, emotional wellbeing and suicide prevention.

We are privileged to be holding one of these forums in Wollongong, and would like to see as many people there to learn more about raising awareness and increasing understanding of mental health and emotional wellbeing. Founder and CEO, Wayne Schwass along with presenters from leading mental health organisation the Black Dog Institute, will be on hand to discuss and advise how to identify, help and support people dealing with mental health and emotional wellbeing issues. Wayne will personally draw on his 12 year journey with mental health and his tireless work as a leading mental health advocate. He will be joined by other former AFL legends such as Danny Frawley (former St Kilda Captain, Richmond Coach and Media personality), Scott Cummins (former West Coast and Collingwood Player and media personality), and Paul Licuria (former Collingwood Player).
